CHOOSES PRISON RATHER THAN EXILE

RETURNS FROM HUNGARIA TO FACE TRIAL IN LIQUOR PLOT

Armand Gardos and Harry Grossberg Confess Conspiracy In Booze Scandal—Maximum Penalty On the Charge is Two Years and $10,000 Fine.

Armand A. Gardos, who fled to Hungary three years ago when his drug company was revealed as a bootlegging enterprise, appeared in federal court in Cleveland on Wednesday as dramatically as tho he had been materialized out of thin air, plead guilty to conspiracy and confronted his associate in crime, Harry A. Grossberg, who also plead guilty and gave up forever the right to immunity he had won in a long fight against extradition from Canada.

Both pleas were inspired by a fear of perpetual exile from the United States. Both preferred prison walls to life under a foreign flag and separation from friends and the land of opportunities.

Others indicted with them are J. E. Russell, suspended prohibition director for Ohio; M. B. Copeland, Russell's permit clerk; Warren Barnett, Columbus attorney; Peter J. Higgins, Patrick and Edward Scanlon, Frank J. Eckles and Carl Fleps, of Youngstown and Louis Gluck of Cleveland.

The maximum penalty for conspiracy is two years imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

Gardos' return from Hungary was United States Attorney A. E. Bernstein's trump card. How it was engineered and how Gardos was kept under cover in and near Cleveland for three weeks is a story by itself.

Several months ago Mrs. Gardos went to see Bernstein to find out what penalty her husband would have to pay if he came back.

Bernstein painted a dreary picture of exile among strangers on one hand and a prison term that could not exceed two years on the other.

Some weeks ago Mrs. Gardos cabled her husband to come back. He caught the next steamer, arriving in Cleveland on a Saturday morning 10 days later.

He was met at Union depot by John A. Foster, special prohibition agent, and hustled to the secret service offices in the federal building. Five weeks ago he went to Cleveland and told his story to Bernstein.

Gardos was then taken to a farm near Chardon, where he and department of justice agents posed as real estate agents.

There was too much talk about their presence in Chardon, however, so Gardos and the department of justice agents went to a farm near Novelty, Ohio, where they carried out the same pretense of being real estate agents.

During the three years he passed in Budapest Gardos had to work to support himself and family.

Once he was picked up by the Budapest police and thrown in jail for nine weeks. He said he never was able to learn any reason for his arrest, but federal authorities believe Budapest police heard he was wanted in the United States and held him until they learned he could not be extradited.

When Mrs. Gardos returned to Cleveland, Gardos accompanied her as far as England, waiting in London until he received word to return. When he stepped off the train in Cleveland all he had in his pocketbook was a $1 bill and a few cents in change.

A motion to dismiss the indictment was made by Grossberg's attorney, former Common Pleas Judge Maurice Bernon. Judge Westenhaver overruled this motion but he made it clear in his ruling that the only charge on which Grossberg could be tried without receiving a chance to go back to Canada was the forgery charge.

During a recess of the court Grossberg's attorney said his client would waive his right to return to Canada, and plead guilty of conspiracy, regardless of the outcome of the forgery case.

Then the scene was laid amid the solemnity of a federal court room for such a drama as seldom occurs outside of a book.

The attorneys and spectators rose as the judge took his place on the bench. There was the usual "expectant hush" and Bernstein called out: "Bring in Armand A. Gardos."

If Bernstein had said "Bring in Napoleon Bonaparte," it would not have caused more surprise.

"What are you trying to do, kid us?" some one asked him. "Bring in Admear A. Gardos," Bernstein repeated.

And Armand A. Gardos came in, flanked by secret service and department of justice agents.

A moment later Gardos plead guilty to an indictment charging him with conspiracy. Immediately Grossberg also plead guilty.

BIBLE READING BILL VETOED BY GOVERNOR

Law was the Storm Center of Sessions of Present Legislature.

Declaring it would abridge religious freedom, Governor Vic Donahey has vetoed the bill to compel daily Bible reading in Ohio's public schools.

The legislature is in recess until December 31, 1926 and the possibility of a special session to reenact the measure is remote.

The Buchanan Bible reading bill is an attempt to establish "state dictation in the matter of religion" Donahey declared.

In disapproving the measure Donahey flew in the face of the powerful "klan bloc" which forced its passage in the closing hours of the 86th general assembly.

The history of the Buchanan bill is one of stormy scenes in both legislative branches. It engendered more bitterness and factional strife than any other issue considered by the general assembly.

Early in the session it was killed in the house by a parliamentary maneuver. Later by threatening to block passage of the Republicans' legislative program the Ku Klux Klan forced a reconsideration.

The bill was then revised and passed by a vote of 80 to 40.

Opposition in the senate was more concerted. For weeks the rules committee prevented it from coming to a vote.

At the closing session April 17 the "klan bloc" again threatened to hold up other important measures unless their Bible bill was brought to a vote. Following a long debate during which attempts were made to kill the compulsory feature the senate passed it 21 to 14.

Governor Donahey's veto kills any attempt to put such a measure on the Ohio statute books for at least two years.

CHEVROLET STOLEN.

Fred Powell is minus his Chevrolet coupe. He visited the Knights of Pythias lodge on Goodale street, Columbus, Wednesday evening and parked his car along side another Chevrolet near the lodge room. Some person, who liked this brand had taken both cars during his absence and he hit the traction for home after he reported his loss to the police department. Mr. Powell carried theft insurance in the Hummel & Plum agency.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN WERE ENTERTAINED

Interesting Session at Home of Mrs. John S. Neff on Union Street.

Mrs. John Neff of East Union street, delightfully entertained the Circleville Woman's Christian Temperance union on last Friday evening. The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. Abbie Gussman, in the chair. The song, "Some Glad Day," was the first number. Mrs. Sarah Wiggins had charge of the devotion, reading the fifth chapter of Matthew and offered prayer.

Another song, "Everybody Sing" followed. The roll was then called each member responding with some condensed fact about tobacco. A short business session followed.

The program of the evening was then taken up in charge of Mrs. Samuel Dunlap superintendent of anti-narcotics, the subject; "Tobacco and Its Evils."

A paper "The Cigaret Epidemic" written by Dr. John Haney Kellogg was read by Mrs. Lucy B. Price.

Tobacco is an enemy in disguise. It is a real menace to the human body—dulling the mind, hurting the heart and eventually undermining the nervous system. Napoleon when once offered a cigar, tried to learn to smoke, but nearly strangled and exclaimed in disgust—"Take it away, take it away, what an infection; what a set of pigs they (smokers) must be! It has turned my stomach."

Another leaflet "Astounding Facts" was read by Mrs. Monroe Crites. Do you know that in 1921, 1,500,000, acres of our choicest land was devoted to tobacco raising. Americans to the number of 2,700 begin the tobacco habit every day. Fully 5,000 matches are struck every second to light the tobacco used in America. The tossing of lighted matches costs the United States in fines $165,000,000 per week, which is $16 a minute. Be careful, Mr. Smoker.

Another paper, "The Smoke Waste" was read by Mrs. Naumann.

Miss Anna Kirkwood then read the tobacco law for the state of Ohio.

A very pretty solo, "Mother's Quiet Love" was then sung by Mrs. Mack Noggle. This concluded the program. A delightful social hour followed during which delicious refreshments of homemade cake, candy and chocolate were served by the hostess.

Miss Frances Holdren who has been the guest of her aunt, Miss Sadie Osborne, has returned to her home in Westerville.

OCTOGENARIAN

The Father of Moses Ammer Passed Away at His Home in Toledo, Ohio.

Aub Ammer, father of Mose Ammer, the fruit merchant of this city, died this morning in Toledo, aged 80 years. The deceased was born in Hasbia, Kafra, a province of Syria in Asia. He came to this country 30 years and settled in this state at Toledo.

He is survived by his wife who was Miss Mary Daabit before her marriage. His wife four sons and one daughter survive. They are Moses Ammer, of this city; Kafra Ammer, of Xenia; Samuel Ammer, of Miami, Florida; Thomas Ammer, of Toledo and Mrs. Regina Allas, of Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Ammer and children left this afternoon for Toledo to attend the funeral.

Idle Mail Box Traps Partridge in Winter

Winsted, Conn.—A steel mail box fastened to a hemlock tree at Highland Lake, a summer resort, trapped and killed a full grown partridge last winter. The bird was found in the mail box when the cover was lifted. The box had not been used for other than cold-storage purposes since last fall, as the R. F. D. carrier doesn't travel that way in winter. High winds, it is believed, blew down the steel lid imprisoning the bird in its novel winter home.

CENTRAL OHIO BALL LEAGUE OPENS SEASON

Large Delegation of Rooters Will go With Team to Washington C. H.

The South Central Ohio Baseball League will open the season on Sunday with Washington C. H. entertaining the Circleville Eagle team and Washington team playing at London. They will be able to give a good account of themselves.

The Circleville team as had a month's preliminary work including three exhibition games, all of which were won, and are ready to open the regular season with confidence that Manager Hott, this week, after a conference with the athletic committee of the Aerie, selected the players he will retain for the opening of the season, and issued releases to the remainder.

The twelve men remaining constitute a well balanced team, which should have unusual ability with the stick, field well and be well fertilized with high class pitching ability.

Behind the bat Targe of Chillicothe, will fill the regular position. He is a ball player of wide experience in good company and is an ideal selection to support Dewey who is just beginning to come into his own as a pitcher. Targe is a good hitter and his knowledge of the game will be invaluable.

Dewey under Targe's able direction should be better than ever and at the end of the season should be able to hook up in mighty fast company.

The infield will be composed of Os. Miller at field, Merritt at second, Thompson at third and Monk Miller playing short stop. They should form a whirlwind fielding aggregation, and will hit collectively as well as any infield in the league. We all know the ability of the Miller brothers both on the field and at bat. Thompson's long hit, last Sunday over the left field fence showed what can be expected of him and we are predicting that Merritt's showing in the regular games will be as a revelation to those who saw him in the preliminaries, when he was not performing near up to the standard of which he is capable.

The outfield will be guarded by Mike Albanese in left, Guy Pettit in center and Mr. Grainer in right and they will handle everything hit in their direction that can be handled. It is in hitting strength, however, where this trio will shine. They will wreck the hopes of many pitchers before the season is over and their average as a whole should be well over the three hundred mark.

The reserve list will include Snyder who can be used on any position in the team and play any of them well and can be depended upon for many a timely bingle. Run Miller who can be used in the outfield and can be used in the box if needed and Floyd Baucher continued on page five

LUCILLE JONES
Elyria, O., April 28.—(U. P.)—Lucille Jones, 19, daughter of a Lorain preacher, pleaded not guilty and was released on bond when arraigned today on charge of arranging clandestine meetings between men and girls in her home city.
She will be tried next Monday or Tuesday, Judge A. R. Webber said, depending on the progress of the trial of W. H. Monshein, charged with contributing to the delinquency of Ethel Mun in an indictment growing out of investigation of Lucille's alleged "vice market."
Romantic Story Denied.
There is a romantic story told of the seal which Jules Favre affixed to his signature at Versailles on Jan. 28, 1871. It is said that Bismarck invited the French minister to follow his example and set his seal as well as his signature to the document. Favre, unlike Bismarck, having no coat of arms, made use of a ring engraved with the lilies of France, a gift to him from Naundorff in return for professional services. The man who claimed to be the real Louis XVII stated that the ring had belonged to his father, Louis XVI, and had been worn by him in the Temple during the imprisonment. The anecdote has been denied by the Favre family, and even if there had been no denial, the only seal appearing by the side of Favre's signature on the 1871 treaty is that of the ministry for foreign affairs of the national defense government.

THE BENEFITS OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE

LESSON TEXT—Dan. 1:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank."—Dan. 1:8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Four Sensible Boys.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Benefits of Total Abstinence.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Sound Mind and a Sound Body.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Some Benefits of Total Abstinence.

I. Daniel and His Companions in Captivity in Babylon (vv. 1-4).
They were carried away to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar in the first siege of Jerusalem. At the command of the king certain choice young men, including the seed of the king and of the princes, were carried away that they might be made skillful in wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, understanding science so that they might be trained to stand in the king's palace.

II. The Trial of Daniel and His Companions (vv. 5-13).

1. Their Conscience Tested (v. 5).
By the appointment of the king, a daily portion of the king's meat and of the wine which he drank was arranged for them. This was contrary to the custom among the godly Jews. Being contrary to the Jewish customs, they could not conscientiously partake of them. It should ever be borne in mind that conscience is the groundwork of human character.

2. Their Change of Name (vv. 6-7).
Among the Hebrews most significant names were given to children. Daniel means, "God is my judge." The significance of this name was that all the problems of life were submitted to God for His decision. God was made the arbiter of his life. This was the secret of Daniel's life. No doubt this expresses the purpose of his parents in giving him the name. His name was changed to Belshazzar meaning "Bel's prince," the one whom the chief god of the Babylonians favors. Hananiah means, "gift of" or "beloved of Jehovah," and his name was changed to Shadrach which signifies, "Illumined by the sun god, Rak." Mishael means, "who is as God" and his name was changed to Meshach meaning "who is like the goddess Shesach, the gentle one." Azariah means, "Jehovah is our help," and was changed to Abednego which means, "the servant of Nego." Back of the change of names was the attempt of Satan to wipe out the name of the true God and have these young men lose their separation and thus become assimilated among the heathen.

3. Their Religious Life (v. 8).
This involved their refusal to eat meat and to drink wine which was contrary to their teaching. In the case of Daniel, at least, it also involved praying three times a day.

4. Their Courtesy (vv. 8-13).
Daniel seems to have been the spokesman for the company. Although Daniel's heart was fixed, he did not forget to be a gentleman. He requested to be excused from this meat and drink in order that he be not defiled. Christians should learn from this to be courteous even in times of great trials. God had brought Daniel into favor and tender love with those who were over him.

III. The Success of Daniel and His Companions (vv. 14-21).

1. Their Physical Health (vv. 14-16).
A test was made for ten days, and it was shown that they were fairer in countenance and fatter in flesh than those who indulged in the king's meat. Godly and temperate living pays. It is obligatory upon God's children today to conscientiously abstain from that which is contrary to His law. It means total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, and everything which would injure the health.

2. Mental Growth (vv. 17-20).
Daniel and his companions were found to be ten times superior to their comrades in matters of wisdom and understanding. It is always true that those who abstain from indulging in the use of strong drink have clearer minds and are mentally better equipped for their work than those who indulge.

3. The Social and Political Preference (v. 19).
They stood before the king.

4. Their Temporal Influence (v. 21).
They were all advanced to positions of influence and Daniel became president of the college of wise men, and the prime minister of the nation.

5. Spiritual Insight (v. 17).
Because of Daniel's loyalty to God, visions embracing the entire history of the world came to him and Nebuchadnezzar's dream was revealed.

Do Right

Do right, and God's recompense to you will be the power of doing more right. Give, and God's reward to you will be the spirit of giving more. Withhold from God and the accounting will follow.

Society

Society is a more level surface than we imagine. Wise men or absolute fools are hard to be met with; and here are few giants or dwarfs.—Hazlitt.

YATES FAMILY HOME FARM CHANGES HANDS

Ex-county Auditor Benj. F. Yates recently purchased of his sister, Mrs. Tabitha Y. Hunsicker the Yates family home farm in Deer creek township containing 562 acres. The farm originally belonged to John Yates who willed it to his son, the late Hon. David R. Yates. Ninety-two acres of the plot formerly belonged to Trustin P. Brown, who gave it to the mother of the present owner.

Since gaining possession of the farm Mr. Yates has blown out 12 acres of stumps and improved it otherwise.

Famous Tyrian Purple.
Tyrian purple, the like of which the world has never seen, was so costly that it was used only by royalty, and hence comes the saying royal purple. The royal robes of ancient kings were dyed with Tyrian purple. This purple dye was extracted from a mollusk called the purple murex. It was found in tropical seas. It had thick shells covered with spines. It secreted a colorless liquid which when exposed to the atmosphere turned purple. History tells us that only a drop or so would be obtained from one mollusk, hence its value. Needless to say there is no Tyrian purple from the "Isles of Elishah" to be found in these days. When the glory of Tyre and Sidon passed Tyrian purple also passed away.

The reason most people are financially "hard up" is because they have too many places to pay. It strains any income to pay the landlord, the doctor, the furniture store, the piano house, the automobile dealer and all the other bill every month.

Reduce your outgo by concentrating your debts. Borrow the money and pay back under the City Loan plan. With but one place to pay your income will go further.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Of Icelandic Origin

The word "tee" which is so commonly used on the golf links and curling rinks is derived from an old Icelandic word, which originally meant "to point out." In time it came to stand for a starting point, a place which was specially pointed out to competitors.

Product of Evolution

An expedition to British Honduras has brought back a pair of strange animals that crawl along the ground like alligators, have the armor of turtles and can spring six feet. It sounds as though the perfect pedestrian had been discovered at last.—London Humorist.

Origin of the Word "Thug"

"Thug," a word we use in speaking of a lawless, brutal man, is also the name of a religious organization in India, which, under pretense of honoring the Goddess Kali, commits robberies and cold-blooded murders.

Wait 1,000 Feet to Open Parachute, Keep Wits

New York.—After a series of tests at Mitchel field, army flying officers said that the theory that a person falling from a great height loses consciousness during the descent had been disproved.

Sergt. Randall L. Bose and Corporal Arthur Bergo went up in a bombing plane and, coached by Lieut. M. L. Elliott, parachute officer, performed four delayed parachute jumps. Each man, on the first jump, fell 1,000 feet before opening his parachute, while Sergeant Bose dropped 800 feet on his second leap.

Both said that, though they were falling with terrific velocity when they opened their parachutes, they were fully conscious.

Weave Beds for Dogs

Seattle, Wash.—Mother used to permit the old dog to lie on a rag carpet remnant beside the heater in the sitting room, but nowadays an industry thrives on manufacturing mats for dogs.

An unusual shipment from the Orient aboard the Iyo Maru, which arrived here recently, was a carload of dog mats which will add to the comfort of American dogs. They are made from a tough fiber with the rough-cut ends woven in to prevent scratching of the user. Eastern cities get the bulk of the shipments.

MILLIONS LOCKED UP IN GOLD AND SILVER TROWELS

Implements Used at Cornerstone Laying and in Turning First Sods Hoarded as Souvenirs.

New York.—What becomes of gold trowels after use at cornerstone layings, or of silver picks and shovels after being used to break ground for some new fane or public work? These commemorative tools almost invariably end up in the archives or strong rooms of the institutions concerned, where they are carefully preserved, say manufacturing jewelers in answer to questions arising since Mayor Hylan recently used silver to turn the first earth for a new subway division.

Jewelers say these implements de luxe could scarcely be thrown aside or melted up again, their material and artistic, as well as sentimental value, being too high.

A gold trowel, for all it has but a few brief moments of actual use, costs as much as $1,500, according to the price lists. Silver trowels command $150; silver-plated, $50. A pick or shovel fashioned out of solid silver would stand any committee on opening day arrangements a good $800; even a plated tool costs $150.

Though the metal itself might be reclaimed, jewelers say, not so the art work the best of these souvenirs represent. The chased work and engraving, the latter giving names of dignitaries and an inscription of the event, reveal workmanship of a high order and would make them prized among collectors.

As proof of sentimental worth, jewelers report that gold trowels used at laying of cornerstones of churches are usually placed afterward with the old communion sets. Sometimes, in cases of establishments which outgrow a first expansion and have occasion to solemnize a second cornerstone, the silver trowel is used again to reinvolve the blessing it seemed to have bestowed originally.

Find Sacred Maya Island in Lake in Vera Cruz

New Orleans, La.—Discovery of a sacred island containing ruins of the ancient Maya Indian civilization in Lake Catemaco, in the Mexican state of Vera Cruz, has been made by the archeological exploring expedition of the department of middle American research of Tulane university.

A brief report from the local university's two explorers, Dr. Frans Blom, formerly of the Carnegie institution, and Dr. Oliver La Farge, made public recently, also told of other discoveries to archeologists. It said that the two, while in the Mexican state of Vera Cruz, had been the first archeologists to cross the Tuxtla mountains and had visited the Popucua Indians, a tribe which still uses bows and arrows.

In addition to the sacred island, the explorers also found ruins and important stone slabs of Piedra Labrada. They climbed Mount San Martin and found a large stone idol on the rim of an extinct crater.

Earth Sinks Foot a Day Near Mississippi Town

Brookhaven, Miss.—Thousands of curiosity seekers are visiting the vicinity of Union Church, a village west of here, where for an undefined reason the earth is cracking and sinking in an area a quarter of a mile long and about forty feet wide. Parts of the strip have sunk from one to fifteen feet. The dropping of the earth continues at an estimated rate of a foot a day.

One theory is that aborigines dug large underground chambers beneath the hills, which are caving in. C. C. Coleman, member of the board of supervisors of the district, said an explosion, which was heard at Harrison, Miss., near here, some time ago and which probably was due to the bursting through the earth's crust of entombed gas, had started the movement of the soil now in progress.

Bottle Gas of Radium Used to Treat Cancer

London.—The discovery of a new process which is expected to have the most important results in the treatment of cancer and other diseases in which radium is used was discussed at a meeting at Middlesex hospital. This discovery consists of capturing emanations from radium, purifying them, and bottling them in tiny glass tubes the thickness of a human hair. This radium is called rado. After an exhaustive trial the Middlesex hospital is now able to supply tubes to other hospitals. It asks that others capture radium gas which would otherwise be wasted. It is now possible to multiply the curative value of any quantity of radium thousands of times.

Scientists Study Garlic Odor, Fail to Find Cure

Washington.—Department of Agriculture scientists, after a long study of the question, have determined that the way to eliminate the odor of garlic from the breath is to refrain from eating garlic.

Dairy interests appealed to the department for a solution of the problem of a garlicky taste in milk from a cow which had eaten garlic. The experts have determined that the only way is to keep the cows from the weed in which they revel.

MACHINERY TO COLLECT GASOLINE TAX

Will Not be the Complicated
Task Officials Thought it Would be.

A $3,000 a year clerk and a $1,500 a year stenographer are the only extra employees the state government will have, for a considerable period at least, to supervise collection of the gasoline tax more general in its application than any excise law in the history of Ohio.

Collection of the tax, which is being levied now by all companies in the form of a two cent increase on each gallon of gasoline sold is not going to be the complicated task which officials at first thought it would be.

Virtually all the work will fall upon the tax commission and while the legal fight is raging to determine whether the voters may pass upon it in the form of a referendum, the commission is going ahead and setting up the rather limited machinery necessary for its collection.

Under the terms of the Brown bill itself, there are three classes of dealers who will be held responsible for the tax:

Importers of gasoline into Ohio, or anyone who causes motor fuel to be brought into the state.

Producers, refiners and manufacturers.

Purchasers of gasoline who buy outside of the state.

Within thirty days after the law becomes effective, each dealer must file with the commission a certificate giving the following information: Name, location or principal place of business and in the case of foreign corporations evidence must be presented to show that the concern has been licensed to do business in Ohio.

The procedure in collecting the tax is as follows:

Each month, the dealer files a statement with the commission showing the number of gallons sold in the preceding month.

The tax commission then certifies to the state auditor the amount taxable and the auditor certifies the tax against the dealers.

Vegetable Relationships

The thoughtful gardener will be interested in the botanical relationship of his vegetables. To the mustard family belong the cabbage and its variant forms — cauliflower, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi and kale, also turnips, radishes, horseradishes and mustard. The nightshade group takes in the potato, tomato, pepper and eggplant. Peas and beans of all kinds are legumes; corn is a member of the grass tribe; while asparagus and onions are related to the lilies. The melons, pumpkins, squashes and cucumbers are members of the gourd family. The parsnip, carrot and parsley, as well as dill and several other pot herbs, belong to the parsley outfit. Beets, chard and spinach are related to the pigweed. Endive, lettuce and salsify are kin to daisies and dandelions.—Farm and Orchard

AN APPROPRIATE START FOR CAMPAIGN

Monday marks the "kick-off" in the greatest game in which the people of Circleville have taken part in years. The line-up for the game follows: For the people: Business men, labor leaders, club women, ministers, doctors, nurses, public officials, farmers, schools, dentists, lawyers, manufacturers, parents and children. Against the people: Germs; dirty yards and streets, ignorance, impure air, flies, rats, indifference, filthy habits, laziness, poor housing, "our town is good enough," procrastination. Three goals will be fought for—human lives, human happiness and human comfort. Ministers will speak on the campaign. Every citizen becomes a voluntary health officer. Circleville will be made as neat as a pin and as clean and healthful as paint, the rake and the scrub-brush can make it. Let every one fall in line. Attend church Sunday, then roll up your sleeves for the task ahead.

Man's Worst Enemy.

It is said that "the first law of nature is self-preservation." Every man will fight for his life. But another instinct equally strong is that of self-perpetuation. Not only will a man fight to preserve his life, but he also will fight for his wife and children through whom he would perpetuate himself and his race.

We have a horror of decay and death. We like to grow old gracefully, honorably and comfortably. Yet we cannot blink the fact that the decay of the human organism is the great enemy whose advance mankind always is trying to delay.

General Decay is assisted most ably by his lieutenants, Dirt and Filth. The dark, dirty and filthy holes are the natural breeding places of cholera, fevers, smallpox, tuberculosis and other deadly diseases. It is in such places that epidemics get their start.

What is the answer to this problem? In simple language it is "Clean Up and Stay Clean."

"Banish dust, dirt and disease, and live longer," should be the motto of every citizen during our Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign during the coming week. Do your duty around your own premises.

Chinese Superstition

According to the superstitious belief of Chinese junkmen long lines of evil spirits follow close in the wake of the junks. If a junkman can cut across close under the bow of a large river boat he can by this means cut away, at least for a time, the pursuing line of evil spirits.

Africa's Vast Water Power

Africa, although known as the "dark continent," contains nearly half of the world's potential water power. Second on the list is Asia, and then come North America, South America and Europe—in that order. Australia, smallest of the continents, is also last as regards white coal.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Thundering Herd" which made its bow last night at the Met theater is a vigorous mixture of entertainment and instruction, of history and fiction. It has tremendous dramatic value, yet the thrilling story it narrates, the adventures and incidents it unfolds and the scenes it pictures are based upon facts that are historically true.

The photoplay was adapted from the absorbing novel of the same name by Zane Grey and centers around the glamorous and colorful days of 1876. Mr. Grey knows the west in the early days as do few others and Lucian Hubbard, who scenarized the story and William K. Howard who directed it have been careful to follow the novel down to its minutest details.

Instead of viewing a plain dotted with cities, ranches and cement roads the film shows us the west as it was fifty years ago—a vast wilderness, ranged by great herds of buffalo, over run by wolves, bears and mountain lions and inhabited by fierce, nomadic Indians.

Interwoven with the theme of the story which concerns the long drive that was begun in '76 to the buffalo fields of Wyoming and Montana, is a virile romance, the principals of which are Jack Holt and Lois Wilson. The development of this love affair which is hindered by Miss Wilson's guardian, Noah Beery, and the sufferings and privations of the early settlers provide enough action, drama and suspense for a half a dozen photoplays. The last big Indian attack upon the whites and the exciting stampede of a vast herd of buffalo furnish two of the many dynamic scenes for this epic picture.

As for the cast, besides those featured players already mentioned, it includes Raymond Hatton who also portrays a leading role, Charles Ogle, Lillian Leighton, Eulalie Jensen, Ed. Brady and several hundred minor characters.

WORLD COVERED BY RADIO NET

Powerful Wireless Telegraph Stations Connect Earth's Greatest Cities.

Washington.—Port Jefferson, Larnarvon, Nauen, Great Lakes, Nantes, and Iwaki are unfamiliar names to most people. To radio operators they stand for six of the world's greatest cities; New York, London, Berlin, Chicago, Paris, and Tokio. They are radio gates to these cities, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters at Washington.

"Because of interference by tall buildings the wireless telegraph stations for the great cities generally are away from the business centers. Sometimes the city's radio gate may be 150 miles away, like the Cabo de Sao Thome station used by Rio de Janeiro. Japan offers another reason for locating a radio gate far from a great city. When Yokohama and Tokio fell in the cataclysm of September, 1923, all communications ceased. Civilization received the first S. O. S. for help for the stricken district from a little seacoast town, Haranomachi, 100 miles north of Tokio, outside the quake area. This trans-Pacific wireless station generally goes by the name of Iwaki, because of the province in which it lies.

Rome Station at San Paolo

"Saint Paul is believed to have been executed at a place now called San Paolo, near the old road to Ostia two miles south of Rome. At this sacred place tall radio towers today receive news from all Christendom. Ostia, once proud port of entry for Rome, gives way to San Paolo, radio port of entry for modern Rome.

"Abu Zabel is Cairo's radio gate. Resting on the edge of the desert, its towers look upon nearby Heliopolis, where Plato studied. In no less striking contrast stands the Carnarvon station, on which London depends largely for trans-Atlantic radio communication. Carnarvon townspeople point out, not their radio station, but grim Carnarvon castle, said to be the most nearly perfect example of a medieval fortress in the British Isles. Carnarvon owes its radio importance to its location in westernmost Wales.

"Nantes is best known for the edict temporarily granting religious freedom to the Huguenots. In France, but radio operators are more familiar with it as a radio station for Paris. Nantes has not displaced Eiffel tower nor the American-built Bordeaux station. Nauen, 20 miles east of Berlin, is the radio port of entry for the German capital. New York may get its wireless messages from any of a number of places. Although communications are constantly coming in at Port Jefferson, L. I., Tuckerton, N. J., near Atlantic City, and Belfast, Maine, are automatically relayed so that they are all actually received in a New York skyscraper.

"Wireless telegraphy throws a net around the earth. The South Orkneys, off the tip of Tierra del Fuego, claim the permanent station nearest the South pole. In January, 1924, the National Geographic society radioed greetings to the Farthest North station, the Bowdoin, Donald B. MacMillan's ship fast in the ice, and deep in the gloom of Arctic night, at Refuge Harbor near Etah, Greenland.

Most Northerly Station.

"Credit for the most northerly permanent station must go to Norway for Kavoersand, which is north of Hammerfest, at the tip top of the Scandinavian peninsula. The lonely Valgach island post maintained by the Soviet government is nearly as far north.

"It is not regarded as wise to cross the Sahara desert in midsummer. The Sahara is more unconquerable than the sea, but radio now has done for the sea of sand what it did for the ocean. Last summer an American newspaper man went overland from Algiers to the Niger. Hazardous though the journey was this traveler was able to communicate with his wife in the United States nearly every three days through the oasis radio-telegraph stations established by the French.

"Col. Claude H. Birdseye and his party two years ago were swallowed up for weeks in the depths of the Colorado river canyons. While their fate was debated in the newspapers the party at the bottom of the canyon heard through their radio set the sad news of President Harding's death in San Francisco.

"Could the great explorers come back they would find the scenes of their exploits decorated with wireless towers. Darien, where Balboa discovered the Pacific ocean, has a wireless station. Cebu, the island on which Magellan was killed, now supports one. So does San Salvador where Christopher Columbus landed. Magellan, going through the Straits, today might radio a waiting world at one end, 'Am entering Straits,' and from a station at the other end report 'Very windy passage. Will use Panama canal next time.'

Twins Reunited

Augusta, Wis.—Still hale and hearty and keeping abreast of the times Mrs. Minnie Ford and Mrs. Margaret Tebo, twin sisters, eighty-four, recently celebrated their birthday. Their husbands dead and their children presiding over homes of their own, the twins are passing their last years together at Mrs. Tebo's home in Augusta.

Matchmaking by Aunt Tilda

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

REGINALD BROWN had been "keeping company" with Matilda Hawkins for two years now. They perfectly understood that they loved each other and were ultimately to be married; though the formal question on Reginald's part and the formal assent on Matilda's had never been spoken. The fact was that Reggie had not spoken because he had never, in all those two years, been in such a financial condition that he felt himself justified in speaking.

He hardly expected that he would ever be able to give Matilda—as he called her—such a luxurious home as that which she now enjoyed in the house of her great aunt, an old woman of eighty, for whom his adored one had been named—a jolly old lady who read romantic novels continuously and was never tired of talking about marriage, though she had never been married herself.

Reggie had been "bred to the law," but had never been able to establish himself in his profession. He was alone in the world and making heavy weather of it in his attempts to reach the haven of a modest competence. Reggie was desperate. He thought of going to Matilda and telling her just how matters stood, of saying to her: "I am a failure—and shall always be one. It's no use. I love you too well to allow you to share my broken fortunes, or to cast myself as a burden upon your wealth. You would despise me if I did, and justly so."

That was what he felt he ought to do; but, somehow, he could not bring himself to do it. Perhaps matters might mend with him. He had several irons in the fire; who could tell what might happen? And then he began to dream dreams of future opulence. Matilda was at the end of all these dreams naturally. That was what he wanted his dreams to come true for—that he might marry Matilda.

Had Matilda known how affairs stood with Reggie she would have rushed to him, thrown herself and her wealth at his feet and commanded him to take it and her. But she didn't know, and therefore she was peevish. Having no mother to confide in she confided in Aunt Tilda. The old lady was delighted to be made the confidant in a love affair. "Oh, you dear child," cried the old lady, "oh, you delightful girl. It's just like something I was reading the other day in 'Ralph Rigstone, or the Hunted Heart.' A charming book—I'll lend it to you. Reggie is timid; that's all. Make him jealous, child. That'll bring him to time. There is Percy Deighton. He's in love with you, I know, he is. Pretend to encourage him—and let Reggie see it. He'll speak then."

"But would that be right?" demurred Matilda, "to encourage the attentions of a man whom I did not intend to marry?"

"Oh, all's fair in love and war," laughed the old woman.

"But what makes you think that Mr. Deighton is in love with me?" objected Matilda; "he has never shown any—er—symptoms."

"Oh, I know, I can tell," chuckled Aunt Tilda; "you go ahead and do as I say if you want your Reggie."

Matilda went away in deep thought. She did not approve of her aunt's plan, but then she did want Reggie, and, unable to think of any other scheme, resolved to try the one suggested.

Now it so happened that Aunt Tilda's novel reading had led her astray. Mr. Deighton was not in love with Matilda at all. He was a man of forty-five, a widower and a prosperous lawyer who managed Aunt Tilda's business affairs for her. In this capacity, and that of a family friend, he was often at the Lawton home and had taken a fatherly interest in Matilda, whose girlish beauty he admired and whose intelligent conversation he much enjoyed. That was all. He was therefore greatly surprised and not a little shocked and annoyed when he realized that Matilda was "setting her cap at him."

"You did very well, very well indeed," said Aunt Tilda after the second of these, to Deighton, embarrassing meetings. "Now we must get Reggie and Deighton here together and you do as well as you did today and we'll bring Reggie to book in no time."

"Auntie, I can't and won't go on with this," said Matilda. "What will Mr. Deighton think of me?"

"Oh, I'll fix Deighton all right," returned the old lady.

The next time Deighton called Aunt Tilda took him aside and told him the whole story, begging him to play his part in her little comedy.

"Really," said the lawyer, "I fear I am too poor an actor to do as you request. I know Brown of course. He's a bright lad, but never has seemed to quite catch on. Perhaps all he wants is a chance. I'll see what I can do." The result was that two days later Reggie came rushing to Matilda, waving his hat and crying out: "Hurrah! We can be married now, Matilda. I've got a job as office manager for old Deighton at a good, fat salary—and if I make good, as I will, he says he will take me into partnership later."

"Is this a proposal?" asked Matilda. "It is, old gal," replied Reggie. "When shall it be?" "There," said Aunt Tilda that night to her niece, "I told you if you followed my advice Reggie would propose."

who is a sensational outfielder and will make a great ball player when he develops hitting ability.

A large crowd of rooters will follow the team to Washington Sunday to cheer them on to victory and you are invited to go along and help swell the crowd.

On the following Sunday the Circleville team will play the opening game on their home lot and the lodge is making preparations for a big time for the opening game. Tickets for this game are now on sale by lodge members and they are selling fast.

One thousand spectators is the smallest figure that anybody will predict for this game and many confidently expect the crowd to exceed this figure by many hundred.

The support that the lodge receives at this game will go a long way toward making or marring the baseball season, and if you feel that you deserve high class ball this season, buy a few tickets to the opening game and then be on the field to root.

Porcupines Annoy Railroad

The government's Alaska railroad has to fight porcupines. Rubber in any form is to the porcupine what waste paper and rubbish are to the American goat, popular for lunching purposes, and the railroad officials have ordered rubber hose in pumping stations and all rubber fixtures to be hung on high poles.

Crocodiles' Advantages

Crocodiles, particularly those of the Egyptian Nile, are mighty hunters, although they exercise great judgment in choosing their victims. They are extraordinarily tough and tenacious of life, and are so shaped and defended by their strong skins that other animals have much difficulty in combating them.

Screen Play by Lucien Hubbard—Directed by William Howard

Have you seen "The Covered Wagon" or "North of 36?"

If you have, you'll know what we mean when we say that "The Thundering Herd" belongs in the same class.

The story by Zane Grey has the same historical importance. The production is of the same gigantic dimensions.

The result is just as thrillingly entertaining.

Picture the setting—the Western wilderness of 1876.

Enormous herds of buffalo running wild across the plains.

The rush of pioneers to the new fields of fortune. The wanton slaughter of the buffalo by the hide-hunters, inciting the Indians to new and savage uprisings.

Picture Zane Grey's greatest romance against that thrilling background!

With a company of 1,000 recreating the amazing scenes and 2,000 maddened buffalo in a REAL stampede.

And the stampede is just ONE clap of thunder in this drama of thundering thrills!

WARNING OF TORNADOES

Sending of Alarm or Approaching
Windstorm Now Considered Possible.

In each community which it reduced to a scene of ruin and death, the tornado arrived unheralded. "It's a cyclone, and it's here!" was the outcry of one woman as she looked from the doorway of her home a few seconds before it was crushed by herculean blasts, and upon others it burst with the same frightful suddenness. To children seated quietly in their schoolrooms, to families engaged in household duties, it gave scarcely a moment's warning.

This failure of ingenious man to predict tornadoes or to warn those imperiled by the disaster was proved to be one of the most costly of his failures. Must he always be so helpless? Those who study atmospheric phenomena frequently tell us that the conditions that are apt to cause tornadoes are well known, yet the actual place and time when a tornado will form cannot be accurately predicted.

Dr. W. J. Humphrey, senior meteorologist of the Weather Bureau, has something more than this to say about tornadoes. "The time is at hand," he says, "when a comprehensive plan to sound the alarm should be worked out by the various states." By the "alarm" he means the warning that would prevent those in the path of destruction from being caught unawares. He points out that the Mississippi Valley is the greatest tornado belt in the world, where the danger is increasing with the growth of population.

Dr. Humphrey is not talking about the prediction of tornadoes, but about the sending of warnings from one section through which or near which a tornado has passed to other sections that may be in the path of destruction. He calls attention to the fact that tornadoes travel in a fairly straight line and that their speed along that line is not usually great, although the speed of rotation may be enormous. Cities in their path, he says, could be warned by telephone of the impending disaster.

While there is no way to save property from the fury of the wind, this would seem to offer a valuable suggestion for giving life a greater measure of security. But the menace of tornadoes would be still further reduced if the weather men could learn enough about tornadoes to be able to send out warnings before they actually made their appearance. They are not mere chance manifestations, but are governed by definite atmospheric laws, however difficult it may be to determine these exactly, and nowhere is there a more promising field of scientific study.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

To repolish tortoise-shell articles that have become dull and dingy dip the finger in linseed oil and rub over the whole surface. Very little oil should be used and if the article is a patterned one it may be necessary to use a soft brush to get into the crevices. Then rub with the palm of the hand until all oil has disappeared and the shell feels hot and looks bright and shiny.

SOUTH AMERICAN INDIANS STILL ARE UNCIVILIZED

So Numerous and Inaccessible Are They That No Census Has Ever Been Taken.

Montevideo.—In a report on "The Indians of South America," prepared by a commission headed by Dr. William I. Haven, secretary of the American Bible society, for presentation to the Congress on Christian Work in South America, it was declared that there are between 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 Indians in South America who have never been reached by the gospel or by modern civilization. So numerous and so inaccessible are these people that no census of them ever has been taken.

The report points out that some attempt has been made to assist in the civilization and christianizing of these Indians by governments and by some of the early missionaries of the Catholic church.

Governments have assisted somewhat in agriculture, and the early missionaries did some work in translation, in education and in religious work. Evangelical missionaries have taught and preached among some tribes in the highlands of Bolivia in the Peruvian Andes, in the southern part of Chile and Paraguay, and in Brazil.

"But, on the whole," says the report, "almost nothing has been done, at least in an organized, systematic, comprehensive way, and the people are living feebly and like a stagnant stream, tilling the soil, fishing in the stream, hunting in the forest, by methods that have not changed for centuries. Disease, pestilential fevers, bites of insects and exposure all prey upon them. Their minds are full of the superstitions of pagan peoples, fearing the presence of spirits in all the mysterious operations of nature. Few realize the great burden of fear which lies like a pall on such untutored minds."

The report points out that since the Indian is largely an agriculturist, any effort to approach him along agricultural lines at once establishes a vital point of contact. During recent years, however, the great cry of the Indians in their appeals to missionaries has been "Give us schools, come teach our children." Where there is such a keen desire for education, the report says, such work cannot fail to be an effective means of approach.

Seek $50,000 for Sin They Lay to Mistake

New York.—Morris Heyman and his wife of 82 Schuyler avenue, Newark, filed suit in the Essex county circuit court for $50,000 against the Castle Ice Cream company of Irvington. They charge that the company has caused them and their guests at their silver wedding anniversary to sin inadvertently.

The complaint states that Heyman ordered 12 bricks of ice cream from the company to serve to his guests, and that instead of ice cream was sent. He said that the mistake was not discovered until he had eaten the ice cream, and, because they had already eaten meat, they violated a canon of orthodox Jewish law which prohibits eating meat and milk at the same table.

Heyman alleges that his guests became indignant when they learned of the mistake and left hurriedly. He said that his clothing business had depreciated as a result of the incident and that his orthodoxy was under suspicion.

Girl Loses Power to Smile, Gets $25,000

New York.—The ability to smile and weep was valued at $25,000 by a jury in Queens county Supreme court when that amount was awarded May Goldhaar, fourteen, whose face was made immobile by a motor accident. The hearing was before Justice Reigelmann.

On July 8, 1923, while living at Rockaway Beach, Miss Goldhaar was struck by an automobile owned by Paul Wolfson, 455 East One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, and Max Schmeler, 500 East One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street. The accident caused paralysis of her face and impairment to her speech. It was the contention of her counsel that she was unable either to laugh or to cry. Wolfson and Schmeler announced they would appeal the verdict, it being their defense that the girl dashed into the street and the accident was unavoidable.

U. S. Judges Must Pay for Robes They Wear

Washington.—Judges in courts under the jurisdiction of the attorney general must buy their own robes until congress makes specific appropriations for that purpose, according to a ruling made public by Comptroller General McCarl.

The ruling was made at the request of the attorney general, who asked whether or not appropriations are available for the purchase of judicial robes for the United States district courts. "The judges have themselves," McCarl declared, "apparently recognized the robes as an article of personal apparel in connection with the custom of wearing them, and this now having been long established there is no proper basis to furnish them at the expense of the United States under an appropriation for general expenses, but specific appropriation therefor would be necessary."

Origin of Expression "O. K." The expression "O. K." is a colloquialism. It may be used as a noun or as a verb. The origin of the expression is in doubt. It is sometimes ascribed to Andrew Jackson as his humorous abbreviation of "oll korrect" (all correct); sometimes to an Indian chief, Old Keokuk, as his signature by initials. Another possible origin of the expression was brought to light in 1909, at the time of the death of Cornelius Kendall of Chicago. Mr. Kendall was the youngest son of Orrin Kendall, from whose initials the use of "O. K." as meaning "all right," is said to have sprung. Orrin Kendall, as the story goes, was a member of the Chicago board of trade battery in the Civil war. He also was a member of the firm of O. Kendall & Sons, whose bakery was in Chicago. The firm furnished bread and crackers for the army, and on the crackers were the initials "O. K." The crackers are said to have been the only ones the soldiers relished, and their expression, "These are all right," later developed into "These are O. K."

World's Continents

According to modern geographers there are six continents—Europe, Asia, Africa, North America, South America and Australia. Some authorities add the Antarctic continent, although this territory has not been sufficiently explored to determine its exact extent.
